

Allied Health is defined as the segment of the healthcare field "that delivers services involving the identification, evaluation and prevention of diseases and disorders; dietary and nutrition services; and rehabilitation and health systems management," according to the Association of Schools of Allied Health Professions. Those in this field often work collaboratively with doctors, nurses, pharmacists and other medical specialists.

THE PROGRAM

A (A) - A
A

INTERNSHIPS

A , A

THE MAJOR

A
A

BEYOND THE CLASSROOM

A. A
A

THE COURSES

A A
A

CONTACT INFORMATION

Maury E. Howard, Ph.D.
Director of Nursing and Allied Health Studies and Professor of Chemistry
nursing-alliedhealth@vwu.edu

